Ty Mitchell
Assignment 11: Events

A. Describe Your Event

Write a short paragraph that describes an event-handling process you plan to implement on your product website.

My event will occur on the reviews page and will allow users to preview how their review will appear to other users before they decide to post it. This event will occur when users click the preview review button inside of the review posting form. The event will then get the input from the user's review which includes the game name, the score the user gave the game, and the comment the user wrote about the game. These will then be formatted on the right hand side of the screen as it will be displayed to other users when the review is posted.

B. Draw an Event Handling Flowchart

Create a flowchart that visually represents your event-handling process. Use the examples above as a reference.